INVESTIGATOR NOTES:

While E. Aster Bunnymund is rumored to be an actual giant talking rabbit, this has never been proven. Nor has it been proven that he is an interstellar, time-traveling, mythological creature called a "Pooka." In fact, very little is known of Bunnymund. Mention of his alias, The Easter Bunny, turns up in practically every city around the world through time, but all sightings are unsubstantiated. There is no evidence that the rabbit does martial arts or that he can burrow to the Earth's core, but there are traces of a large creature doing just those things as the case of the Nightmare King is further investigated. The rabbit, if he does exist, is extremely intelligent and should be approached with caution.

CASE STATUS: OPEN

Subject: The Guardians

Field Notes:

After much study it has been determined that The Guardians, as they are known, are a group of individuals from diverse backgrounds who are united by a common goal. So far we have identified three of these individuals:

1. MiM: A kind, concerned, luminous man who is only known by an alias: MiM. A descendant of the family Lunanoff. It is rumored that he is the leader of The Guardians.
 2. NICHOLAS ST. NORTH: The first to join MiM and become a Guardian. A known swordsman, ruffian, and adventurer. He also travels with a young girl and, sometimes, a wizard.
 3. E. ASTER BUNNYMUND: Unknown. See attached dossier.

UPDATE TO THE FIELD NOTES:

This file will continue to be updated as more information about the remaining Guardians is uncovered.

A new character has come to our attention during research, Pitch, The Nightmare King. He seems to be nefarious and, perhaps, quite evil. He has been seen dressed in black, carrying a staff. The Guardians seem bound together by their desire to defeat him.
